FINANCIAL ACTION TASK FORCE STATEMENTS ON JURISDICTIONS WITH STRATEGIC ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING AND COUNTER-TERROR FINANCING DEFICIENCIES

The Financial Action Task Force (“FATF”) is the global standard setting body for measures against money laundering, the financing of terrorism and, most recently, the financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. In order to protect the international financial system from money laundering and terror financing risks and to encourage greater compliance with these standards, the FATF identifies jurisdictions that have strategic deficiencies in their measures against money laundering and terror financing and works with them to address those deficiencies.

On 22 June 2012 the FATF released a public statement drawing attention to the risks emanating from deficiencies in the systems to combat money laundering and terror financing in a number of jurisdictions.

The FATF has again indicated that there are on-going and substantial money laundering and terrorist financing risks emanating from the Islamic Republic of Iran (Iran) and the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (DPRK).

With respect to Iran, the FATF indicated that it remains particularly and exceptionally concerned about Iran’s failure to address the risk of terrorist financing and the serious threat this poses to the integrity of the international financial system, despite Iran’s previous engagement with the FATF. The FATF reaffirms its call on its members to advise their financial institutions of these threats and to apply effective counter-measures to protect their financial sectors from these risks.

With respect to the DPRK, the FATF indicated that it remains concerned by the DPRK's failure to address the significant deficiencies in its measures against money laundering and terror financing and the serious threat this poses to the integrity of the international financial system. The FATF has reiterated its call its members to advise their financial institutions of these threats and to apply effective counter-measures to protect their financial sectors from these risks emanating from the DPRK.

The deficiencies referred to in the FATF's statement in respect of Iran and the DPRK pose a risk to the integrity of the international financial system and exposes financial institutions engaging with counter-parts in Iran and the DPRK to the risk of involvement in transactions that may relate to money laundering or terror financing. Against this background financial institutions are advised to give special attention to business relationships and transactions with entities in Iran and the DPRK, including companies and financial institutions based in those jurisdictions. Financial institutions should therefore strengthen systems and controls for managing their exposure to the vulnerabilities identified by the FATF and should ensure that correspondent relationships, in particular, are not being used to evade risk mitigation practices and further, to take to take into account ML/TF risks when considering requests by Iran and DPRK financial institutions to open branches and subsidiaries in their jurisdiction.

In the same statement the FATF also indicated that a number of other jurisdictions have strategic deficiencies in their systems to combat money laundering and terror financing and have not made sufficient progress in addressing those deficiencies or have not committed to an action plan developed with the FATF to address the deficiencies. The jurisdictions in question are Cuba, Bolivia, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Ghana, Indonesia, Kenya, Myanmar, Nigeria, Pakistan, São Tomé and Príncipe, Sri Lanka, Syria, Tanzania, Thailand, Turkey, Vietnam and Yemen.

Financial institutions are advised to consider the risks arising from the deficiencies associated with these jurisdictions when entering into business relationships, or conducting transactions with persons and entities in these jurisdictions.

This does not imply that financial institutions should not engage in transactions involving financial institutions domiciled in any of the abovementioned jurisdictions, but when they do so they should ensure that the due diligence applied is commensurate with the risks posed by deficiencies in the measures to combat money laundering and, in particular, terror financing.

In addition the FATF indicated that Kenya, Myanmar and Turkey have not made sufficient progress since being identified in the Public Statement of June 2011 and that it will call upon its members to apply counter-measures proportionate to the risks associated with these jurisdictions if these jurisdictions do not take significant actions by October 2012.

Improving Global Compliance with standards on money laundering and terror financing: On-going Process

In a separate statement, also issued on 22 June 2012, concerning the on-going process to improve global compliance with international standards on measures to combat money laundering and terror financing, the FATF updated the information relating to a number of jurisdictions which have strategic deficiencies in relation to these standards. The nature of these deficiencies differs among these jurisdictions. Each of these jurisdictions has developed an action plan to address these deficiencies and has indicated high-level political commitment to address them.

In the same statement the FATF indicated that it welcomes the significant progress made by Turkmenistan in improving their measures against money laundering and terror financing. As a result of this progress, Turkmenistan is no longer subject to the FATF's monitoring process under its on-going global process. Turkmenistan will work with the relevant FATF-

Style Regional Body to address the full range of deficiencies identified in its Mutual Evaluation Report to further strengthen its AML/CFT regime.
